

Curriculum and Course Development in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

August 2018

LAS Courses and Curricula

- Standing committee of the College
- Faculty members serve staggered two-year terms; represent the 8 electoral groups
- Includes four additional members (undergrad student, grad student, academic professional, specialized faculty) with full voting rights
- Dean's designee serves as ex officio member

LAS Courses and Curricula

- Meets every two weeks throughout the academic year
- Reviews new courses (including those submitted for General Education credit) and new and revised programs
- Agendae, minutes, and materials are made available in Box the week before each meeting

Course Review

Items to consider:

- Is the course described clearly?
- Is there overlap with other courses on campus?
- Is the level/credit appropriate given the course workload?
- Does the course syllabus provide adequate information about the course?
- Are students graded using multiple measures?

Course Review

Committee Actions

- Approve
- Approve with revisions (typically minor)
- Reexamine the course once revisions have been made

Course Review

After review

- 100-, 200-, and 300-level courses are forwarded to the Provost's office
- Courses proposed for General Education credit are also reviewed by the LAS Council on General Education and the campus General Education Board
- 400- and 500-level courses that award graduate credit are forwarded to the Graduate College

Curricular Review

- Units submit program proposals in Senate format to the college
- LAS Courses and Curricula committee evaluates the proposal on its academic merits
- LAS Dean's Cabinet reviews for fiscal implications (if any)
- New degrees are also reviewed by the LAS Executive Committee

Curricular Review

- Once approved, graduate curricula are sent to the Graduate College; all others are sent to the Provost's office for submittal to Senate Educational Policy Committee (EPC)
- EPC conducts its review; upon approval, proposal is presented to the Senate
- After Senate approval, Board of Trustees and IBHE approval may also be required
